

IN PURSUIT OF SOLUTIONS FOR AMERICAN EDUCATION

freedomined.org

If you are reading this, it is safe to say we share something in common. You are either a parent, teacher, grandparent, or concerned citizen who is frustrated with the current state of education in our country. You are also likely someone who believes in the founding principles of our great nation and the concept of cultivating virtue that enables self-governance. Whatever path led you to Freedom In Education (FIE), we're glad you're here.

We look forward to partnering with you as we work to enhance education and increase educational opportunities for future generations. As parents ourselves, we found ourselves disheartened after the school closures in 2020 and horrified once our students went back. The curtain was pulled back on what students were and were not being taught in the classroom. We believe that the best way to secure freedom and liberty for the future is to ensure each generation is well-educated and taught to be independent thinkers. What we discovered was that our children were being poorly educated and trained to be "social justice warriors" instead.

Freedom In Education was born out of frustration with the current situation and hope for what education can look like and its role in strengthening children into the next leaders in their homes, communities, and country. With parent's rights at the heart of our mission, we will fervently pursue ways to enhance and improve content transparency, curriculum quality, and learning options. As we set out to pursue solutions, we discovered a great network of individuals and organizations who have created and are working towards real possibilities. Visit our website to find vetted and endorsed alternatives and solutions to the destructive content and programs currently in K-12 schools.

Key areas we will focus on as we launch our mission are restoring civics education, promoting "virtues cultivation" over "values education," highlighting the thousands of good books written for children and young adults, and celebrating the teachers and librarians who ensure access to them, introducing a logic course into high schools, and collaborating with teachers to be a part of every solution.

In addition to working with teachers, Freedom in Education will offer virtual and in-person educational sessions for parents so that they can be fully equipped to deliver these solutions to their local schools and board members. We will also provide resources for those parents who have decided to take a different approach to education for their children. Whether it's homeschooling, a micro-school, or a hybrid approach, we will offer steps and guidance, and connect you to experienced parents who have taken similar paths.
